

Different Life-styles in Japan and China

Qin Qin (China)

I came from China. I am a Chinese. I have been living in Japan for 3 years. I spent my first year in Osaka. At that time, I was quite lonely without friends since I couldn't speak Japanese at all. That was really a hard time for me.

Now I live in Seto City which is a tranquil town and I like the surroundings here very much. Seto is a clean and beautiful town. Living here I am not lonely anymore, because I got to know a kind lady in my neighborhood and she teaches me daily Japanese and tries hard to communicate with me. I also have a respectable mentor who teaches me Japanese in a classroom once a week and I really enjoy her lessons. I enjoy the beginning of everyday. I enjoy Japanese Sushi and Natto (fermented soybeans) which are really delicious. I enjoy the Japanese festivals which are thronged with people, lively and so much fun.

As my motherland, China is a great country, but the environmental conditions in China are not very good. China is a large country full of vitality. In every morning people of different ages play Tai Chi and etc. in the parks while in the evening people dance together at the public squares. The Chinese dishes are very delicious. There are all kinds of foods and various breakfasts in China.

I hope that you will go to visit China someday.

My everyday life in Japan is happy, busy and a lot of fun.
